

Another World

Ice Breaker · Saturday, Oct 10 · about 5 minutes

|          |      |                  |            |
|----------|------|------------------|------------|
| 1 | 0:00 | Hello            | center     |
| 2 | 0:50 | My first world   | your right |
| 3 | 1:30 | My second world  | your left  |
| 4 | 2:45 | The strange part | center     |
| 5 | 3:25 | A new feeling    | center     |
| 6 | 4:05 | Why I am here    | center     |

 4:00  5:00  6:00 Yellow before part 6? Jump to the closing.

(Blue) = what to do.

Bold = say it slowly.

Orange bar = learn by heart.

1 · Hello

0:00 · Center

BY HEART

Привет. (pause) Salom. (pause)
안녕하세요. (pause) Hello.

Toastmaster of the day, fellow
Toastmasters, and dear guests.

You just heard “hello” in four languages: Russian, Uzbek, Korean, and English.

My name is Azizjon. (pause) Azizjon Kasimov.

I am from Uzbekistan, and I am an AI engineer here in Daejeon.

Here is something strange.

Russian is my first language.

I grew up with it.

But now, speaking Russian is hard for me.

How did that happen?

Let me tell you about my two worlds.

2 · My first world

0:50 · Step to your right (the past)

I grew up in Tashkent, the capital of Uzbekistan, in a Russian-speaking family.

At home, everything was in Russian.

My family, my childhood, my first memories. All in Russian.

And Uzbek, the language of my country?

Yes, I said “Salom” at the start. But I can barely speak Uzbek.

(pause, small shrug)

So my first world was in Russian.

For me, it was just normal. I never thought about it.

When you live inside a language,
you don't see it.

A fish does not see the water.

3 · My second world

1:30 · Walk to your left (the present)

Then I came to Korea to study at Woosong University, here in Daejeon.

And a new world started.

I started learning Korean for daily life.

아직 공부 중이에요. (pause, smile) I am still learning.

But my main language here became English.

At first, it was just a tool for work.

I became an AI engineer.

I build models that forecast solar power, find hidden problems in data, and predict prices.

At work, I speak one more language.

A programming language: Python.

(pause)

Python is the perfect listener.

It never interrupts me. It never gets bored.

But when I make one small mistake, it tells me right away.

(robot voice) “Error.” (pause)

Slowly, English moved from my work into my whole life.

Today I speak English almost all day.

With friends, with new people, and at home with my girlfriend.

English is not my work language anymore. It is my life language.

4 • The strange part

2:45 • Come back to the center (now)

And here is the strange part.

(point back to the past side)

When I look back at the years when I spoke mostly Russian,
they feel like another world.

And now, when I speak Russian, I have to stop and search for words.

My first language became my second language. (pause)

This taught me something.

A language is not just words. It is a whole world.

When your language changes,
your world changes too.

5 · A new feeling

3:25 · Center

But recently, I noticed one more change.

This one is not a new language. It is a new feeling.

Talking to people became easier.

More than that, it became fun.

I can share my ideas, and people understand me.

This year, I tried new things.

I started a small tech meetup here, called Daejeon Global Tech Coffee.

And last month, I started teaching English as a volunteer.

It was my first time ever teaching English.

Step by step, it got easier.

6 · Why I am here

4:05 · Center

I want more of that feeling.

That is why I am here.

I came to this club three times as a guest.

Then my girlfriend and I joined the club together.

My goal is simple: take every role I can, and speak as much as I can.

And I like that here, people tell you what you did wrong.

Just like Python. (pause) But much more kindly.

BY HEART

Every language gave me a new world.

Now I want to get better at sharing my world with other people.

Today, I shared a little of it with you.

I started with “hello” in four languages.

Let me finish with “thank you” in four languages.

Спасибо. Rahmat. 감사합니다.
Thank you.